Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2011098354A1] The invention relates to an elevating table (1) for the maintenance of household appliances, comprising a first frame (10) and a working platform (12) that is continuously height-adjustable in relation to the first frame by means of an elevating device (2). The invention improves said elevating table in that at least three legs (18; 180; 182) of the same length can be mounted on the first frame (10) in such a way that a working height of the working platform can also be adjusted. Furthermore, a separate working plate (30) can also be connected to the working platform (12).
