Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2011158270A2] The invention relates to a dishwashing machine comprising a body or casing (11) defining a washing chamber (12) accessible through a door, means in said chamber to receive the items to be washed, means to supply and distribute washing water onto said items with and without detergent, and a system for setting different working cycles of the machine. In such a machine, the means (14) to receive the items to be washed are arranged to sustain these items in a parallelly spaced apart relationship, and the means (20, 21) to distribute the washing water comprise nozzles (22, 122, 23) supplied with water at a relatively high pressure and delivering jets of water which are directed substantially in a direction perpendicular to the surfaces of the items to be washed and movable in relation to said surfaces.
