Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2615376A1] The method involves setting operating conditions by a user, where the operating conditions are set through gestures of the user. The setting of the operating conditions is performed after starting a gesture recognition mode by actuating a control element or by carrying out of a starting gesture, where a gesture is recognized based on the position and/or orientation of a hand of the user relative to cooking zones (2-5), and correct recognition of the operating conditions needs the hand to be placed in a specific position and/or orientation within a predetermined time interval. An independent claim is also included for a cooking hob.
