Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2012041477A1] The invention is related to a pen, having a first part, a second part pivotable with respect to the first part, wherein an area for clamping an object placed therein, is formed between said both parts, and an elastic restoring device coupled to both parts and defining a geometric axis, the restoring force of the restoring device counteracting a pivoting movement of both parts which opens the clamping area, wherein the restoring force acts in a radial direction with respect to the geometric axis.
