Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2628878A1] The door has an end guide assembly (5) releasably connected to the door and comprising a coupling unit. Another coupling unit is moved between a coupling position in which the former coupling unit is attached with the latter coupling unit to secure the assembly of the door and another coupling position in which the assembly is moved with respect to the door. An attaching unit connects the assembly with a control unit allowing passing of the assembly from a position to another position when the door reaches a closing position of an opening of a construction.
