Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2012062959A1] Method, and also device for making stone or corresponding material gabions from a mesh-like basket material and crushed stone or a similar filling material. According to the invention, the mesh materials of the gabions are fed as continuous webs towards the material feed point and transverse partitions are also connected at specific intervals to the totality forming the sides and bottom of the gabion. The gabions are filled for the distance between the transverse partitions at a time, at the material filling station, and the completed structure is left in place by moving the gabion-forming and filling device forwards.
