Abstract (en)

A packaging (1) for foodstuffs comprising a container (2) made starting from a flat sheet element of paper material having: a base (3), a plurality of lateral elements (4) connected to the base (3) and emerging away from the latter; the container (2) is in an operative condition in which the base (3) and lateral elements (4) define a housing compartment (5) configured to contain foodstuffs. The container (2) comprises a first hooking element (9) cantileveredly constrained to a lateral element (4) and located outside the housing compartment (5). The packaging (1) comprises a covering element (11) of plastic material, exhibiting a first hooking element (12) removably engageable with the first hooking element (9) of the container (2) in order to define a removable constraint condition; the covering element (11) is configured to rotate in relation to the container (2) and to enable, under a constraint condition between the covering element (11) and container (2), the passage of the covering element (11) from a closed condition to an open condition and vice versa. The hooking elements (9; 12) of the container (2) and covering element (11) are located outside the covering element (5) such as to define a coupling outside the compartment (5) not interfering with the internal volume thereof.
