Abstract (en)
A luggage case (100) may include a bottom frame (164) to accommodate attachment of wheel assemblies (116) to a bottom panel (110) of the luggage case (100). The bottom frame (164) may include at least one first plate (186), at least one first structural element (190) defining a first longitudinal axis and operably associated with the at least one first plate (186) and extending along a first dimension thereof, and at least one second structural element (188) defining a second longitudinal axis and operably associated with the at least one first plate (186) and extending along a second dimension thereof. The first longitudinal axis of the at least one first structural element (190) may be spaced apart from the second longitudinal axis of the at least one second structural element (188) in a third dimension. An extension of the at least one first structural element (190) may cross an extension of the at least one second structural element (188).
