Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2741017A1] A grille support (4) for an upper grille on a radiator (1), which includes a corrugated convection plate (3) on its back side, has a main member (6) and a holding member (7). The main member (6) is insertable into a space defined by the convection plate (3). The holding member (7), for holding the grille in a fixed position, is resilient. A method of mounting a radiator grille with a grille support (4) includes the step of inserting the main member (6) in a space defined by a convection plate (3) on the radiator. The method further includes the steps of moving the holding member (6) to a retracted position, placing the grille on the radiator (1), and moving the holding member (6) to a fixed position.
