Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2742844A1] The domestic appliance has a body (4), a door (3) and an actuating element, which is moved from an outer side of the door in a direction towards the body by applying the compressive force (36). A sensor device is provided to generate a position signal for indicating the position of the actuating element relative to the body in the direction, which is compensated with respect to a position of the actuating element relative to the body in another direction perpendicular to the former direction.
