Abstract (en)
The invention is relative to a laundry appliance(100) having a hot water intake, including a casing (2) containing a washing chamber for receiving laundry to be washed; a reservoir (9) ), fluidly connected or connectable to the washing chamber (3), apt to contain an amount of water, the amount of water defining a water level inside the reservoir (9) and wherein a maximum acceptable water level is defined; a first conduit (6) which inlet (6a) is connected or connectable to a hot water source, this conduit (6) being connected to the washing chamber(3) in such a way to be able to channel a flow of water coming from the inlet (6a) into the washing chamber (3); a second conduit (10) apt to connect the reservoir (9) to the inlet (6a) in such a way to be able to channel a flow of water coming from the inlet (6a) into the reservoir (9); a valve (8) arranged for allowing or interrupting the flow of water from the inlet (6a) to the reservoir (9); and a third conduit (11) to connect the reservoir (9) to a discharge station (30) in such a way to discharge water from the reservoir (9). Furthermore, the appliance (100) includes a discharge device (40) apt to discharge an amount of water exceeding the maximum acceptable water level present in the reservoir (9) into the discharge station (30) via the third conduit (11).
