Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2013093067A2] Disclosed is a cosmetic unit, in particular a mascara unit, comprising an applicator and a container in which the applicator is immersed in the ready-to-use position thereof. The applicator can be secured to the container in such a way as to include, in the ready-to-use position, a first zone by means of which the applicator is secured to the container, and a second zone which is at a distance from the first zone in the direction extending along the longitudinal axis of the applicator and by means of which the applicator is also secured to the container.
