Abstract (en)
[origin: ES2522893A1] Protective support (10) for a plate (1), with a base body (20) that provides support points (40, 41, 42) for the sole (2) of the plate (1). The protective support (10) has, in a final area (12) of the base body (20), a tongue-shaped fastening element (50) formed completely or partially between a left rear support point (41) and a right rear support point (42), whose tongue root (51) is joined to the base body (20), and whose tongue head (52) supports a holding projection (53), which is movable through the fastening element (50) relatively to the base body (20) of the protective support (10) so that it can be brought from a locking position (V), in which the plate (1) is fixable to the protective support (10) by means of the holding projection (53), to an unlocking position (e), in which the plate (1) is separable from the protective support (10).
