Abstract (en)
The present application provides a detachable side table which can be detachably mounted at a side of a chair or a bed. The detachable side table includes a tray provided with an article-carrying platform, and a bracket fixedly connected to the tray in a detachable manner, and the tray is connected to the chair via the bracket. In using the detachable side table provided by the present application, the tray is fixed to the chair or the bed by the bracket, such that a user can place articles onto the article-carrying platform of the tray. The detachable side table provided by the present application can be used cooperatively with a conventional chair or bed. When the detachable side table is used cooperatively with a conventional folding chair, the folding chair may have more functions.
