Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2013023990A2] The invention relates to a decoupling mat (1) with a continuous, and if appropriate first, fleece layer (13) as support layer, on which island-like areas (14) of a solid material are formed, and with a cover sheet (15) covering the tops of the island-like areas (14), and also a decoupling mat (1) with a continuous plastic sheet (2) produced, for example, by thermoforming and having wells (3) open at one side, and a cover sheet (4) applied to the plastic sheet preferably in order to cover the wells, wherein the wells (3) are filled. In order to make available an advantageous decoupling mat, it is proposed that the wells (3) are filled with an absorbent hard material, for example expanded clay.
