Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2013127624A1] The invention relates to a method for identifying a person by means of an identification document in an identification system with a plurality of spatially distributed identification control points. The method has a step of detecting (601) an identification data unit by means of the identification document of the person using a first identification control point and a step of preparing (603) the detected identification data unit for a second identification control point according to a waiting line criterion.
