Abstract (en)

A towel (1) comprises a panel (3) of material having a first pair of opposing edges (4) and a second pair of opposing edges (5), the first pair of edges (4) being substantially orthogonal to the second pair of edges (5), wherein the first pair of edges (4) comprises a joining means (6) adapted to form an open-ended (5a, 5b) flexible enclosure (1) from the panel (3) and an adjustment means (7) is provided in relation to at least one of the second pair of edges (5) to reduce one of said open ends (5a, 5b). A user (2) may first join the first pair of edges (4) using the joining means (6), by engaging the zip and then reduce the adjustment means (7) as required at the open end (5a) by drawing a drawstring (8). The resultant enclosure (1) sits on the user's (2) shoulders and drapes over the rest of the user's body. The drawstring (8) and toggles (8a) may be re-adjusted as required for comfort.
