Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2014053293A1] The invention relates to a storage device for storing a container unit (12). In order to provide a storage device by which the space requirement for a storage system can be significantly reduced, it is proposed that the storage device comprises a frame unit (30) forming a receiving space (32) for receiving the container unit (12), and a handling structure (44) which is designed to be handled by a lifting device, and has a stack structure (34), which is designed to cooperate with a corresponding stack structure to form a stack (29), of which the frame unit (30) is a component.
