Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2014161847A1] The invention relates to a plug device, in particular an interface plug device, which is intended to be inserted into a spring-force connection. The plug device has a connection housing, into which an electrical conductor is inserted, and a connecting sleeve having a plug connection arranged in the connecting sleeve. The plug device is characterized in that the connecting sleeve is detachably fastened to the connection housing. The invention further relates to an assembly of a connecting device having a spring-force connection and having a connecting sleeve of such a plug device inserted into the spring-force connection. The invention further relates to an assembly of a connecting device having a spring-force connection and having a plug device inserted into the spring-force connection.
