Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2015009169A1] An accessory for a firearm, such as a rifle, which has a stock, wherein the stock includes a fore end. The accessory includes a fore grip; and a mounting assembly attached to an end of the fore grip, the mounting assembly including a base having two protrusions, wherein the protrusions extend outwards from the base to define a cradle there between for the fore end of the stock, and wherein the protrusions include apertures complementary to a band of a bridging member. The fore grip may make it easier to carry the firearm and can include compartments for storage of accessories such as a bipod and the like.
