Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2015082064A1] A therapeutic garment (1) is intended to facilitate and improve lymphatic drainage in a particularly simple and reliable manner with a comparatively high degree of wearing comfort. To achieve this aim, according to the invention a number of tensioning threads (10) are incorporated into the inner face (8) lying against the skin of the wearer and said threads can be adherently brought into contact with the skin.
