Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2015124480A1] The invention concerns an applicator (10) for a cosmetic product, in particular for mascara, comprising a core (12) that extends in a main longitudinal extension direction, referred to as the extension axis (X), and a plurality of protuberances (31, 32) projecting and extending radially from the core (12), said protuberances (31, 32) being moulded with the core (12). Said protuberances (31, 32) are of at least two different types, a first type of protuberances (31) being in the form of plates (31) and a second type of protuberances (32) being in the form of teeth (32), said first and second types of protuberances (31, 32) being arranged in succession along said extension axis (X). The invention also relates to an associated applicator assembly.
