Abstract (en)
The present invention is a jewelry shoulder strap holder which is used to prevent straps of (but not limited) bags or purse hanging on the shoulder of a person from falling. The jewelry shoulder strap holder comprises of a body member with a collapsible member and a base member having a top surface for a decorative design and a lower surface with a plurality of compartments and non-slipping strap and a means on said body member for securing said body member on to a shoulder strap. Further the jewelry shoulder strap holder has a hinge which pivotally attaches said collapsed member to the base member and divides the base member into two compartments. This allows the holder to irremovably attached at one end of the collapsed body of the holder. Also the other end of the collapsed body has a magnetic catch mechanism.
