Abstract (en)

[origin: US2017049211A1] A container for cosmetic product has a receptacle provided with an inner space and having a cup designed to receive the product. The container also has means that are intended for moving the cup and are provided with a first part and a second part which are coaxial with the cup along an axis of the receptacle. The cup, the first part, and the second part are interlinked in a telescopic movement along the axis.
