Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2015173155A1] The invention relates to a skin scraper, which is characterized in that the skin scraper comprises a blade which has two long sides (a) and (b), of which side (a) has a concave curvature, the other long side (b) runs in a straight, curved, or structured form, which blade has a narrow side (c), possibly has one or two bulges at the corners thereof, and the side (d) located opposite the side (c) is possibly connected to a handle. It is particularly suitable for massaging, treating, cleaning, and cleansing the skin, in particular during a time spent in a sauna. By using the skin scraper, skin excretions can also be collected for examination purposes.
