Abstract (en)

The present invention relates to a presentation box such as a chocolate box made from a single blank comprising three section, a lid section, a base section and an inner base section, that are foldably connected to each other. When assembled, the box comprises a base assembly having the presentation compartments formed from the base and inner base sections, and a lid that covers the presentation compartments. In the preferred construction, the base and lid sections are mirror images, such that the box has a similar structure to a clam shell when in use.
