Abstract (en)
A cabinet suspending device (1) intended to be applied in the structure of a piece of furniture (2) and to engage with removable coupling the upper end (b) of a support rail (3) with an inner seat (11). Advantageously, said hooking means (7) comprise a blocking tab (12) positioned below the lower opening of said inner seat (11) to partially obstruct the lower opening (11) leaving only a limited passage free and cooperating with said inner seat (11) in delimiting a retaining seat in the hooking means (7) suitable for preventing the hooking means (7) from being vertically pulled out from the hooking portion (3b) of the support rail (3) inserted in said retaining seat when said cabinet suspending device (1) is in use.
