Abstract (en)
An opening system (100) for a container of a packaging material (101) is disclosed, wherein the opening system comprises a strip zone (102) to be opened when opening the container, the strip zone extending between a first location (103) and second location (104) when arranged on a plane (107) of the packaging material for the container, whereby the container, upon opening of the strip zone, has an opening that extends along the opened strip zone between the first and second location. The opening system comprises a grip element (105) attached to the strip zone adjacent the first location for opening of the strip zone when moving the grip element, and wherein the strip zone extends, when arranged on the plane of the packaging material for the container, in a longitudinal direction (106) of the strip zone, in at least two non-parallel directions (A, A', A'') in said plane. A method of producing an opening system for a container and a container comprising an opening system is also disclosed.
