Abstract (en)
[origin: US2018320418A1] A striker unit for a motor vehicle includes a base plate that can be connected to a body part of the motor vehicle, a retaining bracket, a bracket plate for mounting the retaining bracket, and an elastic element that is arranged between the base plate and the bracket plate. The base plate and the bracket plate can additionally be connected to one another through a second and/or third positive locking and/or frictional connection.
