Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2017129359A1] The invention relates to a banknote bag made of plastic for receiving the banknote stack, having at least two film layers which are arranged one over the other whilst forming lateral walls of the banknote bag and which are connected together by means of an edge-side welding seam with the exception of a filling opening. The banknote stack can be introduced into a banknote bag interior formed between the film layers through the filling opening. In addition to the welding seam, the film layers are connected together by means of an adhesive in at least one contact region, wherein the connection in the contact region can be released in a nondestructive manner.
