Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2017199269A1] The invention relates to a brush for nails comprising a rectilinear handle with an elliptical cross section integrally connected, at a first end, to a closure cap of a receptacle containing a liquid or semi-liquid substance to be applied to nails. The handle is also connected, at a second end opposite to the first end, to a plurality of hairs grouped into two bunches. The hairs can be immersed into said liquid or semi-liquid substance in order to take a reasonable amount thereof from said receptacle and then apply it on the nail to be treated. The bunches are of the fan-like type, mirror one another, and are not in contact, i.e. the hairs of one bunch do not penetrate the other bunch.
