Abstract (en)

The invention relates to a method for transporting asphalt from an asphalt plant for producing asphalt to an asphalt paver for applying asphalt to a road surface, and an asphalt container. The asphalt container is elongate and insulated. One of the longitudinal ends of the asphalt container is provided with a filling/discharge port. During filling in the asphalt plant, the asphalt container is at an angle or vertical to the longitudinal end, which is provided with the filling/discharge port on the high side. During discharging of asphalt in the asphalt paver, the asphalt container is at an angle to the longitudinal end, which is provided with the filling/discharge port on the low side.
