Abstract (en)
A portable liquid dispenser comprises a container, inside which a deformable bag is arranged, in which the liquid is stored and which is provided with a valve (2) for introducing air between the walls of the container and the deformable bag. Also provided are holes in the upper part of the container for letting liquid into and/or out of the bag, a manometer being arranged in the container to control the pressure of the fluid inside the bag. The device can be used, for example, as a portable shower that supplies water under pressure.
