Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2018060195A1] The invention relates to a method for producing a shaped part (10'), having the following steps: providing a first component (11) of a metal material and at least a second component (12) of a fiber-reinforced plastic composite system, producing a composite (10) comprising the first component (11) and at least the second component (12), heating (2) the composite (10) to a target temperature lying above the melting temperature or glass transition temperature of the plastic, wherein in a forming step (4) the heated composite (10) is formed into the shaped part (10') by means of a forming tool (1).
