Abstract (en)
In one aspect, a method of outputting audio comprises an electronic device (200) sending a request to a display device (100) for the display device (100) to transmit display text to the electronic device (200). The electronic device (200) receives display text from the display device (100), causes the received display text to be converted to corresponding audio; and sends the audio to a loudspeaker for output to a user (400).
