Abstract (en)

[origin: EP3569132A1] The head part (1) for a hand-held cleaning tool comprises an elongated body (2), a first engagement element (3a) for engagement with a first engagement point (11a) of a cleaning cloth (10), and a second engagement element (3b) for engagement with a second engagement point (11b) of the cleaning cloth (10). The first engagement element (3a) is movable in the longitudinal direction of the body (2) between a first position, which is at a first distance from the second engagement element (3b), and a second position, which is at a second, shorter distance from the second engagement element (3b). The head part (1) further comprises a spring device (4a), which is arranged to resist movement of the first engagement element (3a) from the first position towards the second position.
