Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2019038009A1] The invention relates to a method for outputting image data for secure display, in which: the image data (13) are generated for a display apparatus (2); the generated image data (13) are modified depending on a parameter of the display apparatus (2), in particular on a colour correction offset value; and correction data (19) representative of a difference between generated and modified image data (13, 18) are determined. The invention also relates to a device for outputting image data for secure display.
