Abstract (en)
[origin: US2019125059A1] A cosmetic applicator for applying a cosmetic or care product includes an applicator head constructed from a thermal storage material. The applicator head is retained at a distal end of a stem. The applicator head comprises an applying member at a distal portion of the applicator head. The applying member includes at least one side face and an end face, and a longitudinal feed channel is disposed within the applying member. A distal end of the longitudinal feed channel opens to the end face of the applying body and defines an opening at the end face.
