Abstract (en)
[origin: EP3747799A1] A container 100 for housing household tissue paper, comprising a container main body 1 having household tissue paper P housed therein. The container main body 1 comprises: a container main body upper section 11 forming an upper section of the container main body 1; and a container main body lower section 12 forming a lower section of the container main body 1. The container main body upper section 11: has a retrieval hole 112 from which the household tissue paper P is retrieved; and comprises an opening/closing lid 2 that blocks the retrieval hole 112. The container main body upper section 11 is rotatably connected to the container main body lower section 12 and comprises an opening restriction means 14 that restricts the opening angle of the container main body upper section 11. As a result, a container for housing household tissue paper can be provided whereby household tissue paper therein can be easily refilled while the container remains in place.
