Abstract (en)
[origin: EP3791744A1] An improved protection (MC) for part of the human body is described, comprising two flexible rings, an internal one and an external one, substantially equal and concentric. The external ring (30) surrounds the internal ring (40), extends from the surface orthogonally thereto, and at the edge opposite the surface is attached to and integral with the internal ring along a common edge. The internal ring (40) extends towards the surface orthogonally thereto and has an edge attached to and integral with the external ring along said common edge.
