Abstract (en)
[origin: EP3862059A1] The modular game comprises a number of pieces each having at least three pairs of faces arranged in different planes, each pair of faces consisting of a first face having a projection projecting outwards and a second face symmetrically opposite thereto having a recess whose shape is complementary to that of the projection of the first face, to allow several pieces to be coupled to each other so that they are arranged in alignment on at least three different axes. The shape of the projection and the corresponding recess of each pair of faces may be different between the pairs of faces.
