Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2020260148A1] The invention relates to a drip tray that can be attached to a dispenser system, or to a container fixation device, wherein the dispenser system or container fixation device provided for the attachment of the drip tray must have a receiving region for a container of liquid. The drip tray comprises a tray-like region for collecting dripping liquids, a lever element and a hinge element. The tray-like region can be moved between a vertical position and a horizontal position by means of the lever element and the hinge element.
