Abstract (en)
A method for producing a series of trousers is provided. A fabric having a fabric stretch, as measured in accordance with Active Standard ASTM D3107, of at least 85, is provided. Patterns for a plurality of sizes of the trousers are provided, where each size covers at least three standard sizes. The fabric is cut in accordance with the patterns, thereby obtaining a plurality of trouser cuttings, and trousers in various sizes are manufactured from the trouser cuttings. The method according to the invention reduces waste in textile manufacturing.
