Abstract (en)

The invention relates to a carrying body (1) for a demountable support construction, comprising a support surface (2) to be placed on a base and a carrying surface (3) for carrying goods located opposite the support surface, wherein the carrying surface extends between two side surfaces from a first end to a second end of the carrying body, wherein the carrying surface comprises at least one recess (4, 5) extending from a first side face wholly or partly to a second side face of the carrying body for receiving a coupling element (6) in the at least one recess for mutually coupling at least two parallelly placed carrying bodies, wherein the recess comprises two sides directed towards the two respective ends of the carrying body, and wherein a part of the recess is covered on one side. The invention also relates to a set of at least two carrying bodies and a coupling element and to a demountable carrying structure formed with a carrying element.
