Abstract (en)

[origin: EP4039128A1] A beverage container with a hanging member is described. The beverage container includes a body member defining an interior to hold a beverage. The hanging member pivots between a storage configuration and a deployed configuration. In the storage configuration, the hanging member is at least partially positioned in a storage portion in an outer surface of the body member. In the deployed configuration, the hanging member extends from the body member to engage with a fence or other substrate.
