Abstract (en)
An oral care product stand according to the present disclosure holds an oral care product including a body extending in one direction, and an oral insertion part that is connected to the body so as to protrude in a direction intersecting the one direction and that is insertable into an oral cavity. The oral care product stand includes a stand body having a plurality of retainers each capable of holding a part to be held of the body. The retainers include at least one first retainer and a second retainer having a higher height than the first retainer.
