Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2021211580A1] Described is a retro sports system for creating new sporting events with new outcomes utilizing past sporting events that can be used for sports gaming and entertainment or other sports competition games. The system includes a server that may be programmed to randomly select increments of historical past games in order to create a new full game formed from the randomly selected increments. This new game can be used for betting or other competitive games and for entertainment.
