54 Improvements in or relating to the displaying of large photographic prints or transparencies.

57 A photographic print or transparency (1) is displayed by providing eyelets (27) along the edges of a display sheet (3) incorporating the photographic print or transparency and mounting the display sheet under tension within a peripheral frame (4) using springs (29) connected between the eyelets and runners (22) received in a track (21) of the frame. A photographic print may be mounted on a tear-resistant flexible backing sheet (2) to form the display sheet. Transparent tape may be applied to the edges of a photographic transparency to form the display sheet.
