⑤④ Board Game.

⑤⑦ A strategy game is disclosed having a playing board, playing pieces (44) to be moved along prescribed paths from separate starting points to a common goal, "gates" (46) which may be placed in the paths to block them, and "keys" (48) which may be used to open the "gates". The advance of the pieces along the path may be controlled by the participants answering trivia questions or the pieces may be advanced a step at a time with each turn of the participants, but the advance is also controlled by the gates placed in the paths.
