(54) Coins Holder with slots according to face value

(57) A coins holder with different slots according to face value is described, comprising circular slots corresponding to the coins' denominations both by the number and by the diameter, wherein each slot has an opening of a slightly smaller diameter and equipped with a flexible rim that allows the introduction in a smooth way of the coin, and said rim holds back the coin in its position and by bending itself lets it out at the moment of use. In one of its preferred embodiments, the case consists of a useful, inexpensive, comfortable, practical and of compact size compartmentalized coins holder, comprising two half shells equipped with internal compartments for the coins' slot, made of a plastic material having a controlled deformability, tied by a hinge that allows to fold the two shell's halves one over the other in the closed position.
